Christine's Story

In 2008, Christine discovered that all of her financial education had failed to prepare her for the personal losses she incurred due to a global recession. In that “lying on the bathroom floor” moment, Christine chose to reclaim her power to earn, to care emotionally and spiritually for herself, and to break through her own limiting beliefs to create a life of expansion, freedom, prosperity, and alignment.

She knew she had to redefine what it looked like to work hard, understanding that seeming “busy” and chasing the myth of working harder – or smarter – never resulted in life-changing success or revenue. There had to be a better way.

Christine discovered that a foundation of worthiness and standing in our birthright of abundance is the only way to disrupt old patterns of earning and embody the power and presence we have as women to welcome wealth into our lives.

She created a paradigm to innovate shifts in the bigger vision of money while staying grounded in the numbers.

Her unique blend of emotional intelligence + practical financial strategy empowers women to identify their highest revenue-generating potential and place that at the base, not the ceiling, of their earning efforts, driving revenue and profitability in women-owned businesses.

About Christine

Her book, Be The Queen of Your Money, teaches readers how to create an abundant future by transforming the financial narrative holding them back from a life of abundance on their terms. She teaches how to create financial freedom with ease and grace

Christine explores the universal laws of wealth; like the ever-present laws of physics, business owners attract and retain wealth following their mindset. Teaching that abundance is available to everyone, Christine moves through a holographic approach to intuition, emotion, and logic to help women realize their power in making money.

The science of building wealth relies on nurturing existing relationships with money and raising standards and expectations, and Christine is here to lead the charge into a new money paradigm through presence, expansion, receptivity, and flow.

Christine dedicates herself to ensuring money is a conversation that is both normalized and used as a force for good. Each day, she wakes up excited to see clients embodying their own inherent abundance as they experience making clear money decisions from a place of ownership and agency – with financial results to match.

When she is not speaking or working with clients to change the conversation about money on a global scale, Christine is soaking up the Colorado sunshine in her mountain home, nurturing herself with family, friends, and nature.
